

WRA Designation Guide

Have you ever wondered what designations are available to REALTORS® and what the requirements are to earn each one? Have you ever wished that designation information was available to you from a single source? Well, now it is.

To cut through the confusion of the various designations, the Wisconsin REALTORS® Association has put together the Designation Guide, a handy reference book for both new and experienced REALTORS®.

What sets the WRA Designation Guide apart is that it lists all of the information you need when making a decision about pursuing a designation. This includes not only the general educational requirements and whether or not an exam is required, but also estimated cost of courses, the availability of continuing education credit, application fees and annual membership dues to maintain a designation, and more.
